

Appl. No. 10/772,989
Reply to Office Action of September 7, 2005
Page 2

IN THE SPECIFICATION

Please amend page 21 as follows:

ABSTRACT

A medical lead is adhered to a tissue site using a tissue adhesive that includes a lead body having a distal end, and a glue segment disposed in proximity to the distal end. The glue segment, which is formed as a capsule of tissue adhesive, serves to affix the lead body to a treatment site.